++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly dry, bright and warm on Friday.

Today:
Low cloud burning back to Moray Firth coasts where some will linger. Otherwise some good sunny spells today and becoming warm. Cloud and patchy light rain will edge into Lochaber later this afternoon perhaps reaching Barra too. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
Some late sunshine in northwest, while low cloud and haar start to edge inland from the Moray Firth. Clear spells inland overnight, some drizzle reaching Western Isles. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Saturday:
Mostly dry. Haar burning back to east coasts, mostly clearing. Some sunshine in north but rather cloudy with the odd shower. Sea fog possible around Western Isle coasts. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
A fine dry and warm spell of weather with some sunny periods. However some rain will affect the far northwest on Monday, and patchy haar may affect Moray Firth coasts.
